

May Happenings

Our primary classroom just completed their science experiment learning about the lifecycle of a butterfly. The classroom received caterpillars, fed them, watched them grow and cocoon and witnessed the butterflies hatching. Over the weeks they observed the entire process first hand and had different discussions about the process. At the end, a big release celebration concluded the project and the students were able to release the butterflies into the wild.

In celebration of Easter, we hosted fun holiday themed activities. We dyed eggs different colors and also had an Easter egg hunt. The kids had so much fun with the art project and expressing their creativity. The Easter egg hunt was super fun and allowed the kids to harness their investigative and critical thinking skills!
